The tao of Fred

As Fred Eaglesmith rolls into town for a Monday show at 100 Georges, here's a look at Canada's hardest-working musical storyteller

Interpretations vary, but one thing is true: Fred Eaglesmith is a storyteller. He's got a way with words that has made him one of the most successful and beloved musicians in Canada.

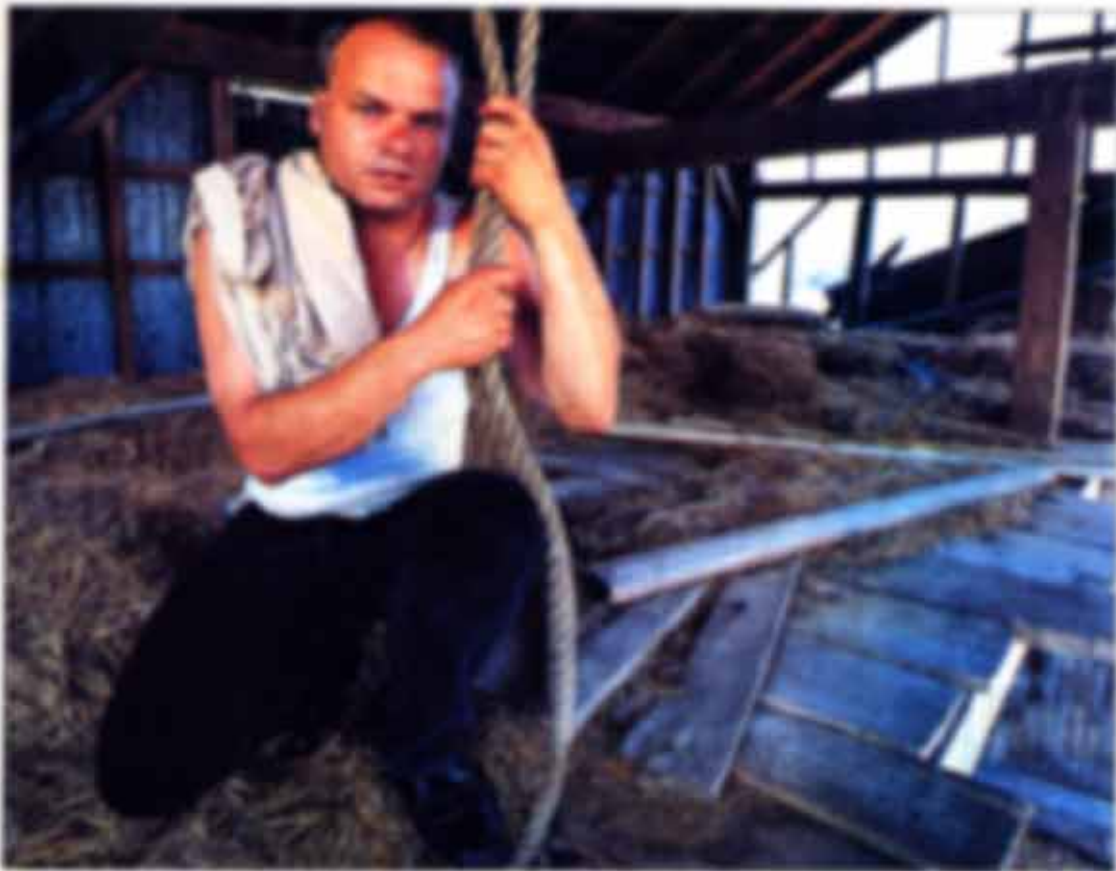

These accounts tell us a lot of things about him, but they don't tell us who he is. Fred Eaglesmith is a man who has spent his life in the music business, and he's done it all. He's been a singer, a songwriter, a producer, and a manager. He's also been a father, a grandfather, and a friend.

Some of his most famous songs are "The Tao of Fred," "The Tao of Fred," and "The Tao of Fred." These songs are about life, love, and the music business. They are simple, but they are also powerful.

His music is a mix of folk, rock, and country. It's a sound that is both familiar and new. It's a sound that has made him one of the most successful and beloved musicians in Canada.
